TWO MURDEROUS BURGLARS.

TREY SHOOT GIFFORD PHINNEY AND ROB HIS LODGING-ROOMS.

An Early Morning Raid and Perhaps a Murder in the City of Churches-Phinney Struggled Bravely with One of the Thieves-List of the Property Stolen from the House.

A case of burglary and abooting which very much resembles the Lyman S. Weeks case occurred early this morning at the residence of Dewit Carpenter, 11 Radde place, in the Twenty-fifth Ward of Brooklyn.

The victim of the shooting is Ulifford Phinney, a man about twenty-six years of

At about 2.55 Mr. Phinney, who has furnished room on the parlor floor, was awakened by a slight noise as though some one were walking in stockinged feet around so a ray of light flashed in his eyes from a dark lantern. It was enough for him to distinguish the forms of two men prowling around the room.

In an instant he sprang from his bed and seized one of the men around the waist.

A struggle then ensued, in the midst of which came the flash and report of a pistol. A stinging sensation in his left breast caused Mr. Phinney to release his hold, and, with a cry of pain, he fell to the ground.

The report of the pistol attracted the attention of some of the other inmates of the house. Upon entering the back parlor they found Mr. Phinney lying on his side, with blood streaming from an ugly wound in his left breast.

blood streaming from an ugly wound in his left breast.

Near him on the floor, lay a revolver of 32calibre, still warm, which the burglars had dropped in their flight.

Mr. Phinney was nearly unconsious.

Word was at once sent to the Twelfth Precinct, and an officer was sent to investigate.

An ambulance was also called. After Surgeon Reed had dressed the wound, Mr.
Phinney was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, where grave doubts are entertained of his recovery.

tal, where grave doubts are entertained of his recovery.

How the burglars got into the house is at present unknown, but they made their escape through the front door. Mr. Phinney could give no description of them.

The following articles were stolen by the burglars: Gold watch and chain, having a black charm with the letter "C" on it; box of silk handkerchiefs, a white moonstone set in diamonds, pair of black onyx sleeve buttons, a diamond stud, $16 in cash from Phinney's trousers.

Radde place is situated in a somewhat obscure part of the city, and in length it is only a block.

THERE IS A MYSTERY.

THERE IS A MYSTERY.

Later developments in the case of the reported burglary at the residence of De Witt, Carpenter, at 11 Radde place, throw a very mysterious air on the matter.

A number of detectives have been investigating and can find no marks of force being used to enter the house, and although Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, their daughter Carrie and Mr. Carpenter, their daughter Carrie and Mr. Carpenter's mother and sister slept on the floor above Phinney's room, none of them heard any sounds of a struggle. It also transpires that two shots were fired, only one of which took effect in Phinney's breast, Phinney was an employee of the breast, Phinney was an employee of the Kings County L road and comparatively little is known of him. Coroner Lindson called at the hospital to take his ante-mortem statement, but has yet succeeded, as Phinney remains uncon-

THE ACCUSED FIREMEN.

Their Trial Begun Before the Con ers This Morning.

A large crowd of people filled the room at the Fire Department headquarters this morning when the Commissioners began the trial of Joseph Keegan and William O'Connor, the members of Engine 14, who were accused of stealing collars and cuffs at the Union square fire. The hum of conversation was interrupted by the call of Secretary Jussen, for Fireman

W. J. O'Connor.

A slightly built young man stepped to the bar and answered to the charges in a firm voice. "Not guilty."

At this juncture Judge Alfred Steckler announced that he would appear for Keegan, and James T. Byrne came forward for O'Connor.

The first man called to the stand was John S. Little, the colored porter at the store where the robbery occurred.

The porter told again his first story of seeing Keegan and O'Connor in the back room of the Earl & Wilson store, near a box which the fire patrol had covered with cloth; of their suspicious departure when he appeared; of his discovery that the goods were gone; of the first denial by the firemen that they had the goods; of their subsequent offer of $5 for his silence, and their endeavors afterwards to get the goods back and make their escape.

Said He Took Peison and Died.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 11.—Patrick Sullivan, keeper of the baths at Clifton Springs Sanitarium arrived in Geneva this morning, went to a hotel, told the clerk he had taken poison and died in ten minutes. The cause of his suicide is unknown. Suilivan had an extensive acquaintance among the leading summer resorts.

Jumped in Delirium.

Felix Marques, aged fifty-nine, while delirious this morning from stekness, jumped from the sec-ond-story window of his home, 59 Futton street, Brooklyn, and received probably fatal injuries.

Brooklyn Brevitles. Theresa Sivioy, aged eighteen, had the middle two fingers of her right hand crushed this morning at Chapel's fur factory.

Mary Connelly, aged nine years, fell out of the third story window at 192 Sanford street and retairs story win-low at 192 Sanford street and re-ceived severe internal injuries.

Games Gallagher, aged eigeteen, was severely bitten on the right leg by a savage dog at the cor-ner of York street and Dixon's alley. The dog was killed.

David H. Casen, forty years old, of 324 Atlantic avenue, is under arrest on a charge of atrocions crosity. While scated at the third story window, he seized a small dog which was running around the room and threw him out of the window to the stone sidewalk below.

The second annual evening picnic of the John Nolan Association, the well-known Democratic organization of the Fifth Ward, took place last evening at Washington Park and was a most enogable affair.

GEN. SHERIDAN IMPROVING.

Nonquitt Air Agrees with Him and He Partakes of Solid Food.

NONQUITT, July 11.—The tidings from the sick room of Gen. Sheridan continue to be of an encouraging nature. The sufferer alept but little through the day yesterday, although he rested comfortably.

The physicians were not displeased at this.

The physicians were not displeased at this, as they hoped it presaged a restful night. In this they were not disappointed. Gen. Sheridan slept well, and ate a small bit of solid food this morning, with his peptonized milk. Particular encouragement is derived from the fact that indigestion did not follow the eating of a portion of boiled fish and mutton chop yesterday.

The feeling of the General's household was expressed to Major Edwin Dews, of this city, who called up Col. Kellogg last evening.

"Tell me," said Major Dews, "If you think the General will recover?"

"Most assuredly," was Col. Kellogg's reply, and to this Col. Sheridan assented.

Nonouitt air is replacing the use of oxygen," said Col. Sheridan this morning, "and the tanks are but little resorted to. We are charmed with the absolute quiet here. With the invigorating winds and with the attention we receive I see no reason why the General will not recover, and the improvement is already more than we dared hope for. I trust we shall have the General sitting on his piazza before many weeks."

HELD FOR CONSPIRACY.

Boss Cooper Walsh Appears Against Three Members of the Coopers' Union.

William Kelly, of 652 Second avenue: Cor. nelius Lyons, of 12 Evans street, and Dennis O'Neil, of 308 Pearl street, all members of Coopers' Union No. 2, were this morning held for examination on July 19 by Justice Smith, in the Tombs Police Court, on charges of conspiracy.

NEW YORK, July 1.

Mr. Jones A. Walsh:

At our meeting last night it was decided that Thomas Sweeney should demand, in presence of one of the Executive Board, one half day's pay, $1.75, for carrying Boops to the street; also to Mr. Con. Lyons, two days and ten hours pay for services tost in demanding his rights as a member of Coopers' Union No. 2, which must be paid before any member of our union leaves your shop, including your foreman, and also the boys in your employ must be disoharged.

On the same day Mr. Walsh said he received the following notice:

Mr. Walsh further says that the three men called on him, stating that they were a committee from the union, and he was told that unless he complied with the notice the men in the shop would strike. Mr. Walsh yielded to their demands, but he brought the letter to the Tombs, and Justice Smith granted him warrants for the three men.

JUSTICE ON THE RIOTERS.

Another Arrest Made-Rumer That Marra May Escape Ponishment.

Andrew Capels was arrested to-day on charge of being implicated in the Dutch Kills riot, in which Welch and Owens lost their lives. He was taken to court and admitted to bail in $1,500.

The other prisoners charged with the same conduct are having an examination to-day before Justice Kavanagh in the Long Island City Police Court.

Great indignation has been aroused by a rumor which is current to the effect that the political wires are being pulled so that Rioter Thomas Marra will be let off with a slight sentence for disorderly conduct not to exceed five days.

Marra was the leader of the gang which attacked and wrecked Tierney's saloon.

tractor Heman, Clark, of the firm of O'Brien & Clark.

Baldwin said he had been President of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, but that he had never gone into any joint stock transactions with Mr. Clark during that period while he was an Aqueduct Commissioner.

He had some transactions with Mr. Clark in purchasing stock and bonds of the Evansville and Terra Haute Railway. There was no syndicate to control the market for these securities, but both operated independently. The witness said he had also been associated with Mr. Clark as a Director of the Mount Morris Bank, but he knew nothing about its carrying any of Gov. Hill's paper.

with Mr. Clark that put me under any obligation to him or him to me."

Mr. Baldwin was asked a great many questions as to his financial transactions in Louisville and Nashville.

He denied that he carried on personal speculation with the funds of the railroad, and added that the speculation in which the company engaged resulted in a loss of $1,000,000 to the company.

"Were you not advised to go to Europe."

"Look here, Mr. Boardman, you want to get me to say that Mr. Clark aided me in my settlement with the Louisville and Nashville. I say it is not true. It is absolutely false."

Mr. Baldwin stated that Mr. Clark was a director in the company at the time, and Mr. Baldwin stated that Mr. Clark was a director in the company at the time, and that he paid several hundred thousand dollars in the settlement which occurred in September, 1884. He knew that Mr. Clark had nothing to do with the settlement.

Mr. Clark bought some shares of Mount Morris Bank stock at par, 130, that were offered for sale in the open market by Mr. Woodward, President of the Hanover Bank, and the cousin of the witness.

Mr. Woodward had loaned him $250,000 on the securities. He did not know that Clark had bought the bank stock till many months afterwards.

When he returned from Europe the witness said he went into private stock speculations in Wall street. Mr. Clark speculated in the same office as Rafibone & Co., but their transactions were entirely independent. He did not become a special partner in Rathere of the same of the same their transactions were entirely independent. He did not become a special partner in Rathbone & Co. till 1886.

In one transaction Mr. Baldwin admitted he had bought $170,000 jointly with Mr. Clark, and that the Continental Bank was now carrying the securities which had not been divided, on Mr. Clark's paper for their joint account. He knew of no other contractor or sub-contractor who speculated with Rathbone & Co.

After he returned from Europe, the witness said, in October, 1884 till December of the same year when the Aqueduct bids were opened he saw very little of Mr. Clark. He knew nothing of the formation of the firm of O'Brien & Clark till the bids were opened.

Mr. Clark had mentioned to him several weeks before that he intended to be a bidder for contracts, but he had never asked him for for contracts, but he had never asked him for weeks before that he intended to be a bidder for contracts, but he had never asked him for any favors.

The witness was asked to describe what occurred at the first meeting of the Aqueduct Board for opening the bids in December, 1884. He said it was an informal meeting. There was a discussion about the bidders, who all appeared to be solvent.

Continuing, the witness said he had known several of the bidders. Brown, Howard & Co., and P. P. Dickinson & Co. were among them. He didn't know anything about the firm of O'Brien & Clark, and on the informal ballot to give that firm all the work, he voted against it. From the start he voted to give some of the contracts to Brown, Howard & Co. and O'Brien & Clark.

'' I don't remember that a ballot was ever taken to give contracts to any other firms, although their names were considered in executive session. There was considerable talk of giving the contract to the Fish syndicate, but their price was too high."

There was also a proposition to give the entire contract to Brown, Howard & Co., but the witness voted against that too. He refused to state how other members of the Board had voted on the contract, including Hurbert O. Thompson, who, he said, however, had asked him to vote for O'Brien & Clark.

Do you think that there is any advan-

The argument in the Court of Common Pleas this morning on the motion for the appointment of a receiver in the case of Chauncey S. Traux appeared for Contractor Clark, and asked that a further adjournment be had, as E. T. Lovatt, attorney for Clark, has been engaged before the Senate Investigation Committee, and has been unable to prepare the case.

Col. Bliss remarked that they had time to give out the Keenan affidavit for publication.

"Whether that was given out by the one side or the other it is an affidavit in the case," said Mr. Truar, "and it is a reflection on the intelligence of the counsel on the other side and the court before whom it is to

Col. Bliss said Mr. Truax had no right to argue the motion, as the answer to the Kee-nan complaint, which was served June 19, had not been served, and Keenan had a right to take judgment against Clark.

The Colonel also said he had letters of great

The Grand Jury Finds Bills Against the Policy Men.

Evidence Gleaned by "The Evening World" Presented To-Day.

Speedy Trial and Conviction Near at Hand.

THE EVENTED WORKS reporter who was detailed to investigate the policy-shops went before the Grand Jury this morning with his evidence. The cases about which he was to give testimony were those of William Me-Curdy, Charles Siebert, Henry Smith, Frank Collins and George Brown. The story of how THE EVENING WORLD has proceeded against these gamblers is well known to its readers. The chain of evidence against them was made as strong as possible, and it will be impossible for them to break it.

against them was made as strong as possible, and it will be impossible for them to break it. With the reporter was Sargt. Combes, who at the head of a squad of officers of the Jefferson Market Court raided the policy shops. Charley Blair, the newsboy who purchased policy tickets for the reporters, was also present, ready to teil the Grand Jury all about his part in the policy investigation. The District-Attorney has in his possession the books, papers, slips, &c., found by the officers in the places raided.

It did not take long for the three witnesses to give their evidence. In about ten minutes they had told their stories and were excutsed. The evidence is, of course, a secret between them and the Grand Jury, but after what has been exposed in The Evening Wonld, it is not difficult to guessits purport. The Grand Jury made its report at 12.45, and among the indictments returned were five against the policy dealers—all that were considered.

William McCurdy, Henry Smith and Charles Siebert are indicted for felony, while George Brown and Frank Collins are charged with a misdemeanor.

McCurdy sold policy slips to reporters at Yashington and Watts streets, Siebert at Canal and West Broadway, Smith at 195 Greene street, Collins at 225 South Fifth avenue, and Brown at 44 Thompson street.

They are all under ball and will probably be arraigned to plead to-morrow morning.

Clerk Bauzer says he thinks there will be no difficulty in having a speedy trial. Every indication points to an early conviction of the gamblers.

the gambiers.

THE EVENING WORLD will make every effort to put these men where they will obey the laws for a while at least, and in the mean time more evidence is collecting against other men of the same stamp.

Physician To Treat Without Charge the Sick Children of the Poor. He Will Begin His Work Next Week-Regular Visits Will Be Paid to the Densely Populated Tenements in the Lower Sections of the City-The Donth Rate of Poor Babes is Frightful-The Field for Philanthropic Work Enormous-Let the Good Example of "The Evening World" Be Fellowed.

THE EVENING WORLD has engaged a physician of excellent standing to devote himself in its behalf during the torrid weeks of midsummer to the gratuitous treatment of the sick children of the poor.

Beginning next week, THE EVENING WORLD physician will undertake this work, and will also from time to time advise its readers, in simple and untechnical articles, how best to restore and preserve the health of the metropolitan babies.

He will visit the tenement-houses each day in a prescribed route, to be determined hereafter, and will treat the ailing children of tender years who may be without medical attendance. Various particulars in the matter are yet to be arranged, such as the filling of prescriptions at the dispensaries, the providing of proper diet for the little invalids. While other papers content themselves with spasmodically devoting an article to the deplorable features of crowded tenement home life in summer, dwelling particularly upon the terrible mortality among the young children of the poor, THE EVENING WORLD will attempt to do something towards allevisting the sad condition of affairs.

A YAST FIELD FOR GOOD WORK.

Of course it is well "derstood that one physician, however able and energetic, can cover but a comparatively small part of the immense field for work in this direction. The babics are dying in New York every hot day by the many score, and a large number of these deaths are attributable to ignorance and a lack of medical treatment and good care. A hundred physicians could well be engaged in this work. THE EVENING WORLD offers the services of one physician as its contribution towards the prevention of the diurnal elaughter of the innocents. THE EVENING WORLD will, of course, co-operate and not interfere with the admirable work of the city physicians. It is to be hoped that its example will be followed by others. THE PEARPUL INPANT MORTALITY. During the month of May the total number of deaths in New York of children under five ears of age was 1.180. larger, and the outlook for July, with the probability of a torrid fortnight at its closs, is something frightful. A very large proportion of these deaths are in the crowded tenement-houses. On the records at the Bureau of Vital Statistics these deaths are attributed to diphtheria, brouchitis, pneumonia, scarlatina, measles, diarrhosal diseases, meningitis, &c. But these are surface explanations. The causes of these complaints and the neglect and lack of proper medical attendance of the sick child must be explained to tell the real story.

THE EVENING WORLD has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Dr. Charles N. Cox for the remainder of July at least. It has too often happened that physicians engaged in this class of work are young and untried striplings, fresh from the s Dr. Cox, on the contrary, is a physician of wide experience and admirable stan
